PREAMBLE

We, the citizens of this planet, declare our support for a new civilizational architecture and call upon the United Nations General Assembly to recognize its foundational principles.

The current global system — built on debt, exponential growth, and the financial logic of war — has reached its structural limits. Its failures are not accidents of policy. They are features of its design. It cannot be repaired. It must be replaced.

Five Foundational Principles

- I. The current monetary system, based on debt creation and compound interest, is mathematically unsustainable and ecologically destructive. It rewards extraction and penalizes creation.
- II. Every human being possesses inherent dignity from birth. This dignity includes the right to secure housing, health, education, and a life free from existential fear — not as charity, but as recognition of reality.
- III. Money must reflect real value. New money shall be created only through verified improvement in the Civilization Index — never through debt. Value comes from what actually makes the world better.

IV. Peace must become financially rational. A system in which demilitarization is rewarded and military spending is costly will naturally produce less war. The Peace Dividend Fund makes this possible.

V. The transition must be conscious, peaceful, and voluntary. We do not call for revolution or collapse. We call for a coordinated global agreement — negotiated in peace, before the old system forces change through crisis.

The Call

We call upon the United Nations General Assembly to adopt a Declaration recognizing the Kolosveuma principles — the Civilization Index, the Peace Token, Civilizational Dignity, and the Peace Dividend Fund — as a legitimate framework for voluntary civilizational transition.

We call upon all governments to study this proposal seriously and in good faith.

We call upon every citizen to understand that a different system is not only possible — it is necessary.

*We do not demand perfection.
We demand intelligence.*

*We do not ask for a perfect world.
We ask for a system worthy of the people we already are.*

Every signature, every share, every conversation brings the first UN Resolution one step closer.

Mathematica contra bellum.

Reason against fear. Life as the measure of all things.
